Total Result of the Sale Nearly $350,000

New York as a picture market has been making itself felt with increasing force almost every season of late years, and the result of the sale of the picture collection of the late Mrs. S. D. Warren of Boston, which was concluded in Mendelseohn Hall last evening, justified the indications of recent seasons.

The sixty-two pictures sold brought $234,590 which with Thursday evening's total of $111,385, makes the sum of the proceeds of the auction $346,275, or an average price of more than $2,815 for each of the 123 pictures sold. Thomas E. Kirby conducted the sale throughout for the American Art Association.

ducted the sale throughout for the American Art Association.

Last evening's sale was a session of many emotions, when a Goya and a Daumier went at $250 and $1,550, respectively, which many of the discriminating critics in the audience thought regretfully low in contrast with the somewhat extraordinary prices to which Millets, Corots, a Daubigny and one or two other canvases soured.

The first sensational figures appeared when a duel developed for the possession of Daubigny's "Landscape with Storks," which I. Montaignac of Paris and Roland Knoedler sent up to $9,700. At that figure Knoedler & Co. took the painting, whether for themselves or on order was not made known. The painting came from the William Schaus sale of six years ago.

There was a good tug, also, among several bidders for Rousseau's study, "Sunday Twilight," which was sold at $5,000 immediately afterward, and for Corot's "Lombardy Poplars," which was starte at $2,000 and sold at $5,100; and the same painter's "Landscape With Tree" (75 of the catalogue), which went at $15,000—all of these three within a few minutes.

But the interest that had been awakened over these paintings paled when the real sensation of the sale came with the putting

But the interest that had been awakened over these paintings paled when the real sensation of the sale came with the putting up of No. 76 of the catalogue, Millet's "The Shepherdess," which developed almost instantly a good stout tussle among bidders in different parts of the hall. Those who fought most sturdily were M. Montaignac, Mr. Knoedler and Arthur Tooth, with two or three others.

saignac, Mr. Knoedler and Arthur Tooth, with two or three others.

The canvas is a small one, 3 by 14 inches, and had not attracted attention enough to lead any one to expect sensational eagerness to purchase it. But the stubborn and protracted contest of the bidders aroused the large audience so thoroughly that without waiting for the picture to be knocked down they interrupted the bidding and the auctioneer's cries by applause several times. The occasion aroused reminiscent feelings of the old Millet days of high-running sentiment and all around the house were whispers of the record price of high-running sentiment and all around the house were whispers of the record price brought by "The Angelus."

On went the price from $15,000 to $20,000, with no lessening of determination on the part of the two most strenuous bidders, Mesers. Montaignac and Knoedler; and Mr. Kirby once was impelled to remark after a liberal advance by M. Montaignac: "I would like to have the little girl stay here, but I'm going to get all I can for her."

showed that confidence was felt in the canvas, which was sent up to $21,500. At that price it went to Emerson McMillen.

Mr. Kirby announced on behalf of Samuel P. Averv. Jr., that the Gérôme, "L'Eminence Grise." Dupré's "On the Clif," and the "Stag Walking" and "Tiger in Lair" by Barye, which Mr. Avery purchased on Thursday evening, were to go to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. POLICE MUDDIE IN YONKERS.

Ruling in Favor of McLaughlin YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 9 .- Word reached this city to-night that the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court at Brooklyn has decided in favor of former Police Captain James McLaughlin of Yonkers, restoring him to the place of Chief of the Yonkers here, but I'm going to get all I can for her."

The advances continued to $23,500, when M. Montaignac said fervently: "Well, I think that will do; let her stay." And the painting went to Mr. Knoedler.

When No. 78 of the catalogue, by the same artist, was put up a battle began that for a time seemed likely to reach the proportions of the contest for "The Shepherdess." The painting was "Peasant Woman and Child, which many persons admired more than "The Shepherdess," and some did not hesitate to declare it a finer picture. It went to M. Montaignac for $11,100.

Reynolds's portrait of Lady Hervery of Pristol sold at $10,000 to Eugene Fisches; "Paris Seen from St. Cloud," by Corot, for $14,700; the "Descente des Bohemiens," by Diaz, for $12,700, and the "Herminie et les Bergers," by Delacroix, for $7,200.

The Corot, "Orpheus and Eurydice," about which some doubts had been raised and been mentioned in the catalogue, Mr. Kirby said had been pronounced a genuine Corot by M. Montaignac, and the bidding showed that confidence was felt in the canvas, which was sent up to $21,500. At Police Department. According to this

The first of the robberies reported was at the home of Charles T. Mathews at 30 West Fifty-seventh street, on Christmas eve. Mr. Mathews is a well-known architect and was at one time professor of architecture at Harvard. While the family was at dinner, the thieves entered the house by means of a rope attached to a chimney, from which they swung to the window of one of the servants' rooms. The burglars ransacked the rooms on the top floor, but took nothing there. On the floor below they helped themselves to a all about $800. On a table nearby was a box containing cash and bonds valued box containing cash and bonds valued at $10,000, which they did not see.

The next victim was Dr. S. Newton Leo of 103 West Fifty-fifth street. On Dec. 27, a young man called and asked to see the doctor. When told that the doctor wasn't in, he said he'd walt, and a servant ushered him into a rear reception room. When Dr. Leo returned half an hour later, it was found that the patient had gone. So had a handsome jewelled clock, a gold-mounted thermometer and many other things. Dr. Leo values the missing articles at $300. On Jan. 5, the home of Samuel Reckendorfer, the lead pencil manufacturer, of 48 West Fifty-sixth street was entered and $2,000 worth of silverware stolen. An entrance was made by way of the butler's pantry. About fifty pieces of silver were taken. Most of them were marked with a monogram.

pantry. About firty pieces of silver were taken. Most of them were marked with a monogram.

The police of the East Fifty-first street station were notified and Detectives Heaney. Heyer, Ray, Martineau and Byrnes have been detailed on the case. So far they have been unable to get any trace of the thieves. The police say that in working on these cases they have learned that eight other robberies have taken p we in the block in which the Mathews and Reckendorfer houses stand.

In previous robberies in blocks bounded by Fifth and Sixth avenues the thieves have begun work by hiring a room or cheap flat in Sixth avenue, from which they could reach the roofs. In Sixth avenue, the block from Fifty-sixth to Fifty-seventh street is occupied by a large grocery store and a fine studio apartment house. The police hazard d a guess that the work has been done by a "swell gang," who could hire expensive quarters somewhere in the block and Assembly committees.

Her nose is broken, both of her eyes are blackened and she is suffering severely from revyous shock.

The talk about these Senate and Assembly committees is now like the froth on a shaving brush; the main points have been settled. The question in Republican circles at the present hour is: How far will the Republican Senate hold of Brackett Providing Senate Senate Senate. Senate Sena and Assembly committees.

The talk about these Senate and Assemand Elsberg go? Another inquiry last night was: What is the motive for this bolt? Why did Brackett, Brown and Elsberg refuse to stand by the Republican caucus? Senator Brackett, it was said, was the self-confessed attorney for Richard Canfield, the gambler, and had secured substantial legislation of benefit to his client; Senator Brown had been recognized favor ably at Albany since he succeeded Joseph Mullin, and Senator Elsberg, while an upright gentleman, did not and could not hope to break the precedent and step over Senator Horace White for chairman of the Committee of Cities.

Louis F. Payn, Senator Platt, Gov. Odell, Col. Dunn and a lot of other folks at the hotel didn't seem to understand why Brackett, Brown and Elsberg, as Republicans, declined to go into the Republican caucus at Albany. Everybody, however, understood the attitude of Senator Brackett toward Leader Raines, and why Mr. toward Leader Raines, and why Mr. Brackett refus to vote for Mr. Raines as president pro tem, of the Senate. Several years ago Senator Brackett got up a bill by which the Railroad Commission was to be increased from three members to five. Senator Raines as chairman

Senator Raines, as chairman f the Railroad Committee of the Senate prosed that bill and thwarted the effort of Senator Brackett to increase the membership of the commission, who all the time, it was said, had the ulterior motive of securing the appointment as a Railroad Commissioner of Republican State Commit-teeman William W. Worden of Saratoga Springs. Comment at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night was that Senator Brackett might have been a little bit amenable to party discipline in these days when the Republican senate majority is considered somewhat

One of the stories told last night was to the effect that Senator Brackett's opposi-tion to the party at Albany at the moment tion to the party at Albany at the moment, and his decision to vote against Senator Platt for reelection to the United States Senate in the joint caucus to be held in Albany on Jan. 20, was because he (Senator Brackett) was not nominated for Attorney-General by the Republican State Convention which assembled in Saratoga last August. It was asked how long could Convention which assembled in Saratoga last August. It was asked how long could a crony of Canfield thwart the majority sentiment at Albany.

There was some talk last night to the effect that Senator Brackett might be deposed as chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, that Senator Elsberg might be dropped as chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Navigation, and that Senator Brown might fall as chairman of the Forest, Fish and Game Laws Commission, because the Republican organization could not brook any rebellion on the part of Senators who had been so long Governor Comes to Town to Talk with the Leaders To-day—Rumors of Discipline to Be Applied to Boiling Senators.

A friend of Senator Brackett said last night: "There is a certain Congressman who has just been relected, who is chasing from Washington to Albany in the hope that the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He didn't meet Senator Platt grow to this own table.
